T.A.S. Mani and his Karnataka College of Percussion of Bangalore/South India had contact with western musicians for the first time when they met Dissidenten through Indian percussionist Ramesh Shotham at the Calcutta Jazz Festival in India, back in 1979. Meanwhile, after almost thirty years of collaboration, Dissidenten and KCP share the experience of many legendary projects and performances all over Europe and India. In 2010 once again they will be performing together.

Dave Knaggs of FolkRoots:

"...I have heard several cross-culture collaborations between distinguished musicians from different continents but few have demanded the level of mutual understanding, sensitivity and commitment that is shown by Dissidenten and the K.C.P."
